280 S. First St.
San Jose, CA 95113-3099

Plaintiff and creditor Veros Credit, LLC, a Nevada limited liability company (“Veros” or “Plaintiff”) attempted to conduct a meeting with Defendant Lorena Mejia, Pro Se, to discuss the items set forth in the Court’s Scheduling Order to submit a Joint Rule 26(f) Report. On or about September 4 and 18, 2017, Plaintiff requested Defendant to contact Plaintiff to conduct this meeting. Plaintiff only had the address of the Defendant. Defendant did not contact Plaintiff in any way to have this meeting. As a result, Plaintiff submits its own Plaintiffs’ FRCP 26(f) Report. See Declaration of Dixon Gardner filed concurrently with this Report for the evidence of the foregoing.

1      I. FACTUAL SUMMARY AND CLAIMS AND DEFENSES

2      1. Plaintiff's Factual Summary

3      Plaintiff contends that Debtor/Defendant Lorena Mejia ("Debtor" or "Defendant" or 4      "Debtor/Defendant") fraudulently, intentionally, willfully, and maliciously attempted to recover in bad
5      faith more money from Veros than Debtor was entitled to under California and Federal law. Debtor
6      purchased a used 2003 Honda Accord bearing the VIN ending in 047926 ("Vehicle") from San Jose
7      Auto Outlet Plus Trucks, Inc. ("Plus Trucks") by way of Retail Installment Sales Contract ("RISC").
8      On or about June 26, 2013, Debtor, through counsel, caused a letter to be sent ("Demand Letter") to Plus 9      Trucks, alleging, among other things, violations of the Consumer Legal Remedies Act ("CLRA"), which 10     included a settlement demand for, among other things, return of the cash down payment Debtor paid in 11     connection with her purchase of the Vehicle in the amount of $3,500.00; the trade in value she received
12     in the amount of $1,500.00; finance payments in the amount of $4,739.85 paid to Veros; and other 13     damages, court costs, and attorneys' fees. Plus Trucks sent four checks to Debtor, fully satisfying the 14     entirety of her settlement demand, and paid Veros for the remaining balance due and owing under the 15     RISC. Thereafter, Debtor demanded further compensation from Veros despite the fact that she was fully 16     compensated by Plus Trucks and the Holder Rule caps Veros' liability to that of Plus Trucks, which was 17     zero after Plus Trucks refunded all the money Debtor paid and rescinded the sale with her.

18     The CLRA makes clear that Debtor could only maintain a lawsuit that she filed in Santa Clara
19     Superior Court in Case Number 113-CV-247552 as plaintiff ("State Lawsuit") against the dealer, Plus
20     Trucks, (and the finance company Veros) only if Plus Trucks failed to offer an appropriate correction
21     within 30 days of receipt of Debtor's CLRA demand. Debtor demanded rescission and restitution, as 22     well as attorneys' fees and injunctive relief. Within 30 days of this demand, Plus Trucks complied and 23     fully compensated Debtor, including her demand for attorneys' fees, and paid off the balance due and 24     owing under the RISC. Thus, Plus Trucks actions ended Debtor's entire action against both Plus Trucks
25     and Veros under California and Federal law because: (1) Plus Truck's settlement tendered all of the 26     relief to which Debtor was entitled, which barred Debtor's claims in the State Lawsuit; (2) Veros'
27     liability is limited under the FTC's Holder Rule ("Holder Rule") after Plus Trucks tendered to Debtor all 28     amounts Veros would be liable for under the Holder Rule assuming liability could be found against

1 Veros (no liability was found against Veros in the State Lawsuit); (3) although not required under the 2 CLRA, Plus Trucks generously agreed to pay Debtor's attorneys' fees, which was a further savings for 3 Debtor.

4 As a result, the Court in the State Lawsuit awarded Veros $47,972.75 in reasonable attorney's
5 fees in the State Lawsuit based on Debtor's "subjective bad faith" because Debtor maintained the State
6 Lawsuit after Debtor should have ended the State Lawsuit once Plus Trucks rescinded the sale and 7 refunded all amounts owed to Debtor under the sale contract and CLRA. Veros alleges that the Debtor's
8 actions to continue litigating the State Lawsuit after Plus Trucks rescinded the sale and refunded all
9 amount owed to Debtor under the sale contract and CLRA constitute intentional fraud under 11 U.S.C. §
10 523(a)(2)(A) and/or a willful and malicious injury under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6) to seek a recovery
11 greater than permitted from Veros under the sale contract, CLRA, and the Holder Rule.

12 Further, Veros has sought relief from stay in the Debtor's Bankruptcy Case to pursue its causes 13 of action against Debtor and her attorney, Scott R. Kaufman, in Santa Clara County Superior Court in 14 Case Number 16CV304484 for malicious prosecution and abuse of process, seeking damages of at least 15 $59,593.04 exclusive of attorney's fees, costs, and pre- and post-judgment interest for costs incurred by 16 Veros in the State Lawsuit based on the same allegations alleged in the immediately preceding 17 paragraph. Veros seeks punitive damages too against Debtor and her attorney in Case Number
18 16CV304484. Veros filed its complaint in Case Number 16CV304484 on or about December 29, 2016
19 against Debtor and Mr. Kaufman.

20 This Complaint in this instant Adversary Proceeding seeks to have any judgment entered in Case 21 Number 16CV304484 be found to be nondischargeable under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(6) in 22 this Adversary Proceeding since any judgment in Case Number 16CV304484 will be based on the same
23 facts to prove Veros' nondischargeability actions under 11 U.S.C. §§ 523(a)(2)(A) and (a)(6) in this 24 Adversary Proceeding against Debtor.

7           intentional fraud under 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A) and/or a willful and malicious injury under 11 U.S.C. §
8           523(a)(6) to seek a recovery greater than permitted from Veros under the sale contract, CLRA, and the
